

SKI BOOM

Ski instructor Joe Mato soars through the air in a "leg split" during a skiing demonstration.

One of the oldest of sports is bringing the young and old together in greater and greater numbers today.

Many hilly areas throughout the country, within a short distance of big-city living, are resorts for people seeking the excitement and pleasure of skiing.

In the Pocono Mountains, one of the major ski areas of northern Pennsylvania, the Camelback Ski Resort near Tannersville is one such center.

Staffed by 150 men and women, it provides everything from measured and adjusted ski rentals to the latest in fashion sales, roomy cafeterias, subdued cocktail lounge and a kiddie nursery available to the visitors.

To the skier, room to move is important. Along the 16 trails served by T-bar, J-bar and chair lifts, natural and man-made snow keeps some 4-5 thousand skiers moving, per hour, up and down the mountainside.

Spaced for beginner, novice, intermediate and expert, the slopes are under the supervision of volunteer members of the National Ski Patrol.

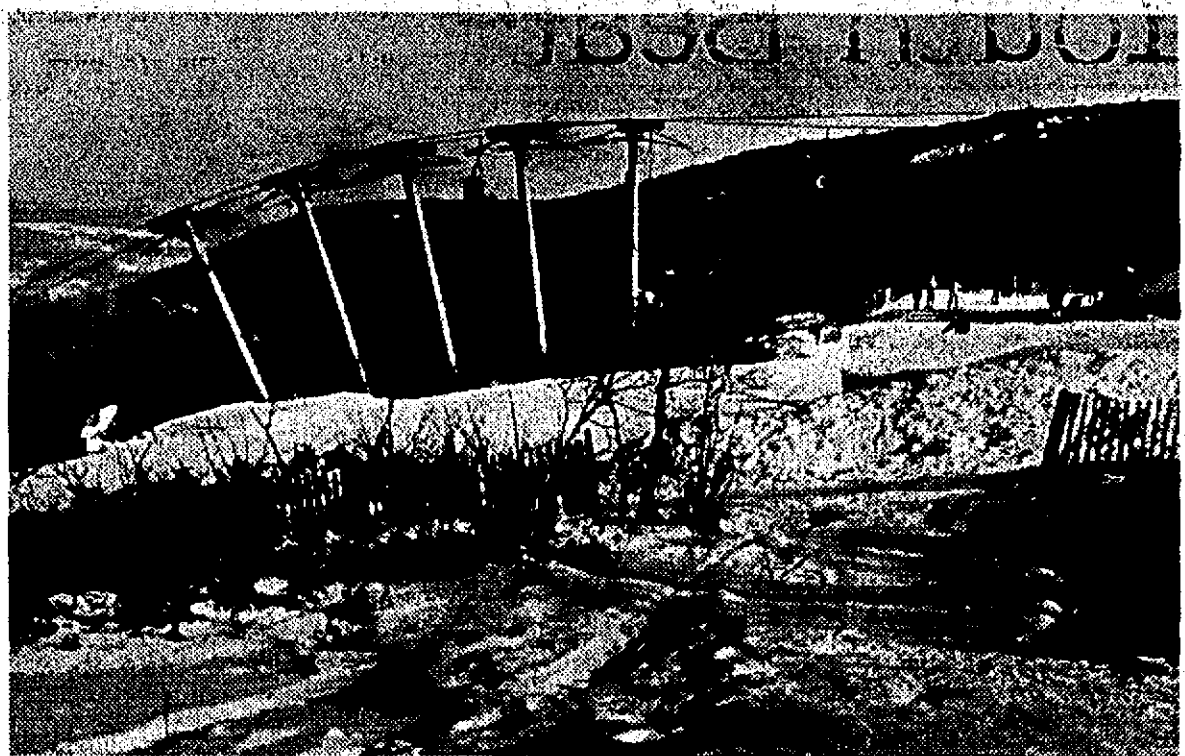

At the base of the trails, full-time and part-time ski instructors are available to show, through demonstration and personal attention, the right and wrong way to move over the snow.

When night comes, it brings the opportunity to rest up for the next day's adventure or attend the scattered after-skiing parties held throughout the area.

On the slopes, however, staff members work through the night to grade and level the high and low spots, making the next day's run as fast and fun as the day just gone.

A small part of the weekend crowd gathered about the Main Lodge.

The triple-chair lift brings skiers to the top of Camelback Mountain.

George Pascucci, Lake Ronkonkoma, N. Y., has his ski bindings adjusted by rental staffer Donald R. Bowen.

Joe Mato explains basic movements of the sport to Susan Cox, Aurora, N. Y.

A member of the National Ski Patrol moves down an expert slope to warn a skier of current surface conditions.

Before the map at the Main Lodge, Diane Leatherman, Reading, Pa., studies the designated trails.

HELEN HELP US!

PREVIEW OF MARRIAGE
Dear Helen: I am 19 and my fiancée is 20. We have been engaged four months and I feel like I'm married already... But without a husband.
He left for the service just after he gave me the ring. And he left strict orders that I couldn't go out anywhere.
In all this time I haven't set foot out of the house except to go to work and I feel like I'm in jail. I don't see the harm in seeing a movie or taking a drive with my girl friends. But I can't even go over to their houses!
I love my fiancée and wouldn't be unfaithful, but don't you think this is asking too much, especially since we don't plan to be married for three and one-half years? He'll be away most of that time.
— GIRL IN A CAGE
Dear Girl: If this is a preview of marriage, don't wait around for the main feature! This boy has a lot to learn about trust before he walks down the aisle. — H
Dear Helen: I am 16 and have been going out with boys several years. Most of them tell me they love me, but that scares me away and I drop them, to find someone else.
All my girl friends are going steady and they are scared their boyfriends will drop them. Most of the guys I date are scared I will drop them.
I haven't been going with anyone lately and I am happy. Am I cold-hearted? If I can't fall in love, I may turn out to be an old maid! — LOVELESS
Dear Loveless: Stop worrying. You're perfectly normal for your age. It's those "so in love" steadies who are out of kilter.
If you doubt me, look who's happy and who isn't. Keep on being friends with many boys, but don't push yourself into a big romance before you're ready. You don't need to prove anything—except that you're smart enough to wait. — H
Dear Helen: A while ago when I read that letter from the girl who complained about her boyfriend's kisses, I thought it was hilarious, but now I'm in the same situation, and it ain't funny!
My fella is nice, cute, intelligent, respectful, everything except he kisses like a St. Bernard.
I can't think of a nice way to tell him a girl likes a firm, strong kiss. — KATY
Dear K: Tell him just that: a girl likes firm, strong, masculine kisses. If boys only knew how many girls felt likewise, they'd learn to button up their lips. — H

Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

NEW HOPE FOR EDUCATION: Teens and teachers who are sick and tired of school as it now exists can hope for a better future according to Leland B. Newcomer, president-elect of La Verne College in La Verne, Calif. Data processing and computers will make the major miracle possible. By turning schools into computers and students into numbered robots? No! Computers will merely determine what a student knows and doesn't know and will help plan instruction specifically for each individual. Students will spend more time in individual study and less hearing endless repetitions of what they already know. Teachers will specialize in lecturing or one-to-one counseling depending on what each does best—his status and pay will increase tremendously, too. Basically, students will have much more independence and less "overseeing" and "babysitting" from bored and boring teachers. Even the "prisonlike" look of many schools will change, thanks to such things as glass sliding walls and the huge instructional material and resource center that will take up to 50 per cent of new schools. We wonder how many years of conservative resistance will delay these much-to-be-hoped-for changes.

MORE RESULTS OF "FRIGHT YOUR SENATOR" POLL: With all the hand wringing and bleating about "what's wrong with young America" the phrase makers and blah-blah flaks of both parties ignore a chance to close the generation gap and open a new era of political responsibility. Republicans and Democrats should put "vote at 18" planks into their campaign platforms. Then go after the states to push through the necessary legislation—for November 1968! Another significant result: Seventy-two per cent of the respondents favored a "youth party movement" to provide politicians with more and better information on the views of young America.

BEATLE FAN CLUBS UNITE: Disc jocks heading up all-out effort to deliver a write-in total on a "Beatles Back" campaign. Promise is that "audiences will be quiet and music appreciated" if the boys "will only come back" to the U.S.A. Meanwhile, the top 10 of 1967 (from Temp Newsletter) are as follows:

1. Ode to Billie Joe
2. Windy
3. I'm a Believer
4. Happy Together
5. Groovin'
6. To Sir With Love
7. Light My Fire
8. Daydream Believer
9. Never My Love
10. Something Stupid

THE TEACHING ART: Surprising number of young Hollywood actresses choose education first! Before even attempting to crash the acting scene, "That Girl" Marla Thomas got her state teaching credential from University of Southern California. Shelby Graun, pretty actress and wife of Chad Mitchell, taught school and substituted in Los Angeles while getting a start. Even blonde, pretty Meredith MacRae of Petticoat Junction is working on her credential at U.C.L.A. while acting. One of our spies caught her with her nose buried in a textbook on a plane flight from Miami to Los Angeles—every minute counts on such a busy schedule!

Bob Thomas at the Movies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Questions that are being asked about this week's Academy nominations: If "Doctor Dolittle" was considered one of the five best pictures of the year, why wasn't it nominated for direction or performances? Was Katharine Hepburn's performance in "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" really that good, or was she nominated for sentimental reasons? Why was "Far from the Madding Crowd" so overlooked? (It was named only for original musical score.) Has there ever been a year of less distinguished songs? (Try whistling any of them.) Was "Thoroughly Modern Millie" really good enough to win seven nominations? Why did the voters overlook the performances of "In Cold Blood"? And didn't "The Taming of the Shrew" deserve more than nominations for art direction and costume design? Shouldn't James Joyce have been nominated for screenplay of "Ulysses," instead of Joseph Strick and Fred Haines? Do the best-picture nominations reflect President Johnson's plea against traveling abroad? (All five were filmed in the United States, although part of "Doctor Dolittle" was shot overseas.) And are the Academy voters being chauvinistic about rewarding American actors? (Only three of this year's 20 nominees were foreign-born vs. more than half last year.) Or are the voters simply looking for newcomers? (Who ever heard of Dustin Hoffman, Gene Hackman, George Kennedy, Michael J. Pollard, Estelle Parsons, Beah Richards or Katharine Ross before this year?) Aren't the awards much simpler and more logical now that designations of black-and-white and color have been eliminated in photography, costume design, etc.? Wouldn't they be even better with one writing award instead of two? And the same for scoring? Why wasn't Sidney Poitier nominated?

Negroes Mark Birthday of Dr. DuBois

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Eleven days after Abraham Lincoln's birthday, Negro organizations around the country are marking the birthday of a man who had as much impact on the struggle for equality as anyone since the president who freed the slaves.

"The problem of the Twentieth Century is the problem of the color line . . ." wrote Dr. William E. B. DuBois at the turn of the century.

This sociologist, historian, college professor, novelist and politician not only lived long enough to see his prophecy proved true, but lacked only five years of being around for his 100th birthday today.

DuBois died in Ghana Aug. 28, 1963, at 95 a voluntary exile from his native United States where he had been a towering and roundly controversial figure, constantly urging civil rights leaders to push harder.

He gained national recognition in 1903 as leader of a group of Negro intellectuals opposed to the "gradualism" theories of Booker T. Washington, who had endeared himself to powerful whites by arguing that social equality was neither necessary nor desirable at that time.

In 1905, he helped found one of the forerunners of the nation's oldest civil rights organization, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

He was instrumental in helping found the NAACP in 1909, and then from 1910 to 1934 lashed out at social evils with an eloquent pen as editor of its official publication, The Crisis.

So popular were his articles and editorials that circulation of The Crisis rapidly grew from 1,000 to 100,000; far more than the membership of the NAACP.

After a series of fights with the NAACP over whether it was moving against segregation fast enough and hard enough, DuBois eventually broke with the organization.

Now a committee of 50 persons, many nationally known Negroes, want to make a state memorial of five acres in the rolling Berkshire hills of western Massachusetts where DuBois was born and grew up.

The property, owned by DuBois from 1928 to 1954, is located between the towns of Egremont and Great Barrington, and DuBois in his autobiography credited the area's absence of racial tension in the late 1800's with helping shape his life.

DuBois died on the eve of the 1963 March on Washington, after breaking with the United States and devoting his final years to editing the Encyclopedia Africana, designed to focus attention on Negro contributions to world culture.

He had joined the American Communist party in 1961, and renounced his American citizenship in 1963 to become a Ghanaian. Honored on both sides of the iron curtain, he was the first Negro elected to the U.S. National Institute of Arts and Letters, and the first to receive the Kremlin's Lenin Peace Prize, which he won in 1958.

The Gilbert and Sullivan song, "A Policeman's Lot Is Not a Happy One," might be applied to bridge columnists also.

If today's hand looks familiar to you, it should. It appeared Nov. 30 except that North had six diamonds and only three spades.

The hand as shown today is the one actually played but when we finished writing it up we decided that North's three diamond response with six high card points and a five card suit was a trifle silly and gave North one more diamond and one less spade.

In the hand as shown today if West opens the king or queen of diamonds, South will have to go down.

West opened a trump and South proceeded to make the hand by cashing two clubs, ruffing a club, drawing trumps, cashing his ace and king of spades and playing the rest of his trumps. He held the jack of spades and ace-jack of diamonds as the last three cards in dummy and West, who had to discard before dummy, could not hang onto the queen of spades and king-queen of diamonds.

Several hundred readers pointed out to us that the squeeze was beautiful but unnecessary.

In the hand as shown on Nov. 30 North only held three spades. South could discard one of those three spades on a high club and then ruff out his six of spades and nine of clubs.

These readers were very charitable. Most of them said that they liked our column and were pleased to see that we made mistakes just as they did.

We have tried to get personal replies to all of them. If we missed anyone we hope that he will accept this column as our apology.

Its Distinction

With a population of 123,500, the city of Kingston, Jamaica, ranks as the western hemisphere's largest English-speaking city south of Miami, Fla.

Many of these deformities are now being treated with some success by liquid silicon implants. Facial depressions caused by accident injuries; cancer surgery or natural deformities, such as receding chin or lopsided face, can be built up in this way.

The idea is not exactly new and has been used for some time to correct cosmetic deformities or deficiencies in other parts of the body. Some years ago a beauty contestant was disqualified for "illegal" bosom implants.

Techniques have improved and Dr. Robert G. Calderwood, University of Chicago, reports in a recent article that he has successfully recontoured a young woman's face that was asymmetrical and filled in a deep depression in the lower jaw of a man who had previously undergone surgery for removal of a portion of his hinge joint.

Facial Deformities Successfully Treated

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

People with facial deformities are usually sensitive about them and their lives are often directly affected by the severity of the deformity, real or imagined.

Many of these deformities are now being treated with some success by liquid silicon implants. Facial depressions caused by accident injuries; cancer surgery or natural deformities, such as receding chin or lopsided face, can be built up in this way.

The idea is not exactly new and has been used for some time to correct cosmetic deformities or deficiencies in other parts of the body. Some years ago a beauty contestant was disqualified for "illegal" bosom implants.

Bobcats Beat the Leopards

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer

On a good night for HHS basketball, the Hope Bobcats grabbed their fourth conference win of the year last night at Jones Field House, stopping the Malvern Leopards 55-50.

The win was compounded by coming after the "B" game, in which the Hope "B" Lizards walked off with a 50-43 decision.

With a tie game at 23-all at the half, the Bobcats pulled away in normally their bad quarter, the third. With a 19-6 advantage, Hope took a comfortable margin which held up during the rush at the end.

Jimmy Singleton led the Cats with a fashionable 14-point performance, and Dwight Gallaway sacked 12. Richard Saltee was next with 9 points, Larry East sacked 8, and Ricky Putman and Danny Reyenga had five apiece. John Henley had two to end the scoring. James Morris and David Williams recorded 16 and 14 points respectively, to lead 14 points respectively, to lead Malvern.

The "B" Lizards held on to their early lead, as a 32-19 halftime margin held fast to the end of the 50-43 victory. Terry Turner paced the Jayvees with 15 points, and Ronny Brown hit 12. Danny Reyenga was next on the list with 6, and Wayne Norvell and Jimmy Singleton laid up 5 each. Donnie Middlebrooks popped four points, Thomas Norvell and Ricky Putman had two apiece, and Parker Powell added one. Chuck Gray put in 18 and Robert Stevens 15 to lead Malvern.

Both these teams finish their regular season tonight, traveling to Texarkana Washington for a battle that will largely determine where the Bobcats will be paired in the 4-AA Tourney next week at Southern State in Magnolia. The "B" Lizards lead off the action tonight at 6:30 p.m. in Texarkana.

Tigers End Season With a Loss

By LINDA WILLIAMS
Yerger Sports Writer

The Yerger Tigers ended their season of basketball with a loss to Mena, in the senior boys tournament, held in Gurdon, Wednesday night.

First to make a score for the game was Mena. From the first tick of the clock to 2:40 remaining in the first the Tigers hadn't scored. Isley came back, and put them on the score board by one point. Ending the first quarter score Mena 21 - Tigers 5.

In the second quarter the boys began to break loose. Sorry to say, it was too late for them. Mena had them caged, always by a lead of 28 to 30 points. The half-time score was 35-14 favoring Mena. The third quarter score 55-26, and the final score 75-48.

Scoring for the Tigers, Brown 34; Smith 3; Isley 3; Woods 2; Block 8.

Going along with this loss, we are also losing some great ball players from the squad. Because of this being their last year at Yerger, Johnny Smith who has played for 6 years will leave us. Johnny has shown great ability to play ball. He carries with him a shot that will truly be missed by the Tigers next season. Spencer Brown is taking his departure also. Brown has been playing for 5 years. During this time, he has played hard and rugged ball. Knowing the years he spent at Yerger will be treasured by him forever. Terry Verge and William Muldrew both will hang up their uniforms, leaving their positions as forwards. Verge has played for 3 years. Muldrew 2. Wilber Woods, a newcomer with the Tigers, gave his best service for this season. Willie Preston will lay aside the ball. For the past four years he played well. We regret this great loss, but we realize they can't stay with us forever.

We give thanks to that great coach who stayed and struggled with the boys from the beginning to the end. I know this year with the Tigers hasn't been his best, so I say to him, "Hold on! A winner never quits, and a quitter never wins."

Hope Girls, Ashdown in State Finals

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer

Proving they were champions by their ability to come back, the Hope Lady Cats earned their way into the State Class A championship game tonight by blasting the Greenwood Airedales 66-45 last night at Prescott.

This evening Hope wraps it all up in a rematch of the district final, with the Lady Cats meeting Ashdown for all the marbles at 7:30 p.m. Ashdown, like the Lady Cats, had to come from behind, but the Pantherettes pulled off a 46-39 win over tough Alma to square their end of the deal.

The teams will meet in the brand-new Prescott High School gym, which will certainly be charged with electricity, and all of it won't be coming from the fluorescent lights, either.

But the Lady Cats were on the short end for quite a while. The Airedales worked up their first lead at 4-3 with 4:25 left in the opening segment, and began to see how high it could go. Meanwhile the Lady Cat forwards were clogged up under the bucket, and could not hit from outside.

Kathryn Coleman sank a pair of charity shots after the buzzer to bring the Lady Cats within four while trailing 13-9 at the quarter. However, this couldn't give Hope any momentum, and Greenwood continued their domination throughout the rest of the first half, and the Lady Cats were behind 27-23 at the halfway mark.

After the intermission, though, the Lady Cats were quite a different team. After trailing by as much as seven points in the second quarter, Hope picked up a lot of hope.

The scoring was even for a while, and Greenwood enjoyed their last lead at 35-32 with 3:17 left in the third quarter. From there on Hope went on a 34-10 spree to the end. With their best-balanced scoring effort of the year, the forwards completely confused the Greenwood guards while the Hope defense was picking up their opponent's number.

Now with everything swinging their way, the Lady Cats ran off a 18-0 spurge in the last four minutes of the game. But the ultimate compliment came from Hope Coach Charlotte Gibson after the game. "Win or lose against Ashdown," she said, "this is still the greatest girls team ever to represent Hope High School." And she's right.

Tonight's state championship battle between Hope and Ashdown will be broadcast live over KXAR, beginning with pre-game activities, at 7:15 p.m. If you would like to see a state title decided, you should get a seat if you arrive an hour early, no less.

Salb Wins in Kansas Meet

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Karl Salb, a University of Kansas freshman from Crossett, Ark., won the shot put event in the Kansas Federation Track Meet Thursday night with a toss of 60 feet 7 inches.

Salb's throw was the second best all-time put by a Big Eight athlete. Gene Crews of Missouri threw 61 feet 7 1/4 inches in 1966.

"I dare say if somebody said I'll give you 40 per cent—or 51 per cent—of a club, I'd have to listen," he added facetiously. "But there is nobody around who is going to do things like that."

Lombardi said he approved of the four divisional setup in the National Football League and had not made up his mind about the ultimate realignment of teams in 1970 when the NFL and the American Football League complete their merger.

As for the players' demands, Lombardi had just one comment:

"There is only so much income whether it goes in the form of regular salary or for so much an exhibition game. There is only so much there to take."

Small birds usually fly no faster than 15 to 25 miles an hour.

Waldo downed McRae High of Prescott 76 to 67 in the semifinal play in the District Senior boys tournament at Emmet. In the second semifinal game Ellis High of Stamps came from behind to down Amity 80-75.

Thus the stage was set for the finals tonight at Emmet at 8 o'clock p.m. Waldo and Ellis High.

The Retired Lombardi Still Talks Same

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Vince Lombardi, the retired coach, looks and talks like the same Vince Lombardi who used to crack the whip for the Green Bay Packers.

Lombardi was interviewed by newsmen Tuesday night in the absence of any news from the professional football league meetings.

"I'm in lieu of news," announced Lombardi. Then he proceeded to talk about his new career as a general manager, divorced from coaching responsibilities.

"What are you going to be doing next summer when the Packers start working out," a fellow asked Lombardi.

"I will be very much disappointed if I do not have enough self discipline to stay away," he said.

"Where will you watch the games?"

"From the press box," Lombardi said the door to his office always will be open to any player who wants to talk with him. He will handle all the contract signing.

"Did the general manager of the Packers take a cut when he quit coaching?" another asked. "If he did, he probably would still be coaching," said Lombardi.

In answer to recurrent rumors that he eventually will be back in New York, Lombardi said, "I can understand those rumors. I am a New Yorker, and I have a lot of friends here in New York."

'Twilight of Gods' For Mantle, Mays

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK — (NEA) — In German it is called "Gottterdammerung." In American baseball slang the term is "over the hill." Both, however, mean the same: the twilight of the gods.

Some of baseball's most celebrated heroes may be entering their last season. After basking for nearly two decades in the warmth of national acclaim, players like Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle, and somewhat lesser lights such as Zoilo Versalles and Rocky Colavito and Bob Allison and Bill White are battling, if not for their baseball lives, for their baseball pride.

Rarely does an athlete gracefully concede that his reflexes are gone, his ability waned. (Joe DiMaggio and Rocky Marciano being notable exceptions.) There is always "one more season," the challenge of youth and the stout pay check.

For some, though, like Ted Williams, who batted .388 at age 41, such considerations might be more than just the wishful longings of a has-been. "I'll never embarrass myself on the field," said Mays. "I'll know when I'm not contributing anything to the team, and I'll quit. But I feel I can still keep up with almost anyone else."

Mays will be 37 years old on May 6. Last season was his poorest in 17 major league seasons. Because of a variety of illnesses and injuries, he missed more games than in the three previous seasons combined for San Francisco. He hit .263 with 22 homers and 70 RBIs. Substandard, to say the least, for the National League's greatest home-run hitter and recipient of a $125,000-a-year contract.

Mantle, a few months younger than Mays, has been playing on virtually one leg and with the support of Band-Aids and Elmer's Glue, for the last several years. Before each season there is widespread speculation that he will not be back. Each season, though, a pop of cameras and a scribble of writers report his signing a $100,000 contract.

Nancy Says 'No' To 'Never Club'

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEA Sports Editor

CHAMROUSSE, France — (NEA) — World class skiers are such an insular clique that both Nancy Greene and Jean-Claude Killy, by far the outstanding performers of the 10th Winter Olympics, conned themselves into believing that the gold medals they picked up don't match the exhilaration of winning a World Cup.

For Nancy, particularly, it's a delusion because if she hadn't flashed through the giant slalom course here to win by an amazing 2.64 seconds over the course, she had to know it was her last chance for an Olympic gold medal, the most decisive two-minute interval in her athletic life. Because this was her third Olympic Games, right down to the last event, and although she had picked up a silver medal in the ladies' special slalom earlier, this was the probable end.

By the next Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, she would be 29, decrepit in skiing, which burns out its kids almost as fast as swimming. Besides, as she confessed later, "I like boys, too."

She is also the super "red shirt" athlete of all time. For the last four years, as a member of the Canadian national ski team, she has been on a scholarship at Notre Dame College in British Columbia. She now enrolls as a sophomore, interested in history—and skiing.

For the last eight years she has been virtually all there is to skiing in Canada, and the writers who know her are amazed that she still gives so much of herself to the sport. Nancy could do without the apple-cheeked prim image she's picked up en route because when she's not in serious training, she wouldn't mind a discreet cocktail or a quick puff on a cigarette. But she's sincerely dedicated to the elevation of Canadian skiing.

"I really like racing," she said in the flush of victory. "That's why I've been around so long."

Last summer in Montreal she worked as a secretary at Expo, played tennis, sailed and went to Chile three weeks to ski. Hell, who wouldn't like the life?

She's also a tough competitor. She cracked up at Portillo, Chile, in 1966 when she was leading the World Cup competition. A year later she captured four straight races in Europe, deserted the circuit to fulfill skiing obligations in Canada and missed three important meets. She rejoined the World Cup competition in the United States and finally captured that coveted prize in the last race of the last competition at Jackson Hole, Wyo., when she beat France's equally tough Marielle Goitsch by 7/100th of a second in the grand slalom.

"As a competitor and skier," she said, "the World Cup means more. It's the climax to a season. I don't feel the same way now after an Olympic victory. I know I still have a lot of races ahead."

But 10 years from now, a slashing dash through 68 gates in 1:51.97 are what they'll remember her for—that and the Olympic gold medal that went with it.

smoking and gained weight that apparently hampered his swing, he dropped off the tour. His reasoning was that if you're playing badly, why play at all?

However, it didn't take Lema long to establish a reputation as a serious challenger to the likes of Palmer, Nicklaus and Player. In his first Masters tournament, he finished second and in 1965 won the British Open.

Winning a major title seemed to give him confidence and the experts figured he would soon join the "Big Three." Naturally, the stories of his swinging times flourished, too. When he married an airline stewardess, the fans thought her to be the perfect girl for Champagne Tony, the perfect playboy.

They were surprised to learn that his wife, Betty, turned out to be a shy, quiet girl, although very attractive. And they were shocked when the couple was killed in a private plane crash in July, 1966. Immensely popular because of his image, he would probably have been just as well-liked had he been himself. But few people ever knew the real Tony Lema.

FBI Searches for Ones Who Set Off Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is throwing large numbers of Federal Bureau of Investigation agents into the search for the early morning bomber who touched off a blast at the Soviet Embassy.

Scores of FBI men, government demolition experts and Washington policemen have been working over the debris on the embassy grounds since the explosion Wednesday morning.

So far they have not been able to determine—or have chosen not to report publicly—the type of explosive used.

An intensive search is being made for a bushy-haired man seen by a cab driver who was close to the building when the bomb went off on a window ledge. Cabbie Richard E. West told police he attempted to drive after the man, who was on foot, but lost him after he rounded a corner.

West had been turning into an alley by the embassy. Another cab ahead of him was rocked heavily by the blast, losing hub caps, he said.

West said he ran to assist the dazed driver of the other cab but was interrupted by a man in a dark suit who told him to pursue a man West had seen moments before as he pulled into the alley.

The man who addressed him in the alley identified himself but West said he didn't catch the name and remembers hearing only a rank—"Major." Authorities have not identified him more fully.

FBI agents and other investigators on the case have been attempting to find other motorists who might have been driving by the embassy in the hours preceding the blast. Close to the street, the building is easily approached and lacks any sort of wall or high fence.

The State Department said Thursday the life of Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin and other Soviet officials in this country was threatened in an anonymous letter in late January.

Department spokesmen said security precautions were stepped up as a result.

Bacteria Is Thriving on Flying Farm

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some plants and insects have a rough time during spaceflight but bacteria—including those of the food-poisoning family—appear to thrive on it.

Space scientists told about it in reports prepared for a symposium today outlining results of experiments carried aboard Biosatellite 2—a kind of flying farm of lower animal and plant organisms.

The spacecraft was launched by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration from Cape Kennedy, Fla., last September. Its experiments capsule was recovered from orbit near Hawaii after nearly 45 hours of weightless flight.

The symposium, jointly sponsored by NASA and the National Academy of Sciences, brought out these findings:

—In general, plants had trouble maintaining "proper orientation" during the zero-gravity or orbital flight.

For example, leaves of pepper plants twisted and curled downward, and wheat seedling roots grew upwards and sideways instead of downward as they do on earth.

The wheat made a good recovery after this bizarre start, and seedlings even grew slightly taller than their stay-at-home counterparts.

—Automatically applied radiation proved deadly during flight for flour beetles. Twice as many of their offspring failed to survive, compared with beetles similarly irradiated on earth.

—Wasp egg cells suffered considerable damage from radiation, but partially recovered as they matured further.

—Two strains of bacteria—including salmonella organisms that cause ill like food-poisoning and typhoid fever—grew substantially faster and seemed to tolerate radiation better in the absence of gravity than do similar microbes experiencing earth's gravity.

Another space traveler that fared well was that jelly-like subject of high school biology students—the amoeba.

The scientists said they felt the Biosatellite findings have substantial potential importance for understanding the effects of space flight on higher organisms, including man.

Politicians Trying to Bring Unity

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Opposing Democratic political blocs in Pulaski County reportedly have been meeting in recent weeks with the goal of preserving the county's Democratic delegation in the legislature.

The idea behind the meetings reportedly is that if potential Democratic opposition for the incumbents can be discouraged, the legislators can avoid bitter and costly primary campaigns and point toward Republican opposition in the fall.

The delegation in the House generally has taken no part in the move, but several received memorandums Tuesday from state Sen. Ben Allen of Little Rock inviting them to a Thursday night meeting at the office of John Cunningham, a real estate and insurance man who is aligned with the dominant faction on the Pulaski County Democratic Committee.

Allen declined comment today on whether the meeting was held. He also declined comment on other aspects of the reported move.

Ex-Warden Knew of No Brutality

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—A warden at Cummins Prison Farm during the 1940s says prisoners were punished at the prison, but he knew of no brutality or inhumane treatment of them.

T. G. Milner of Pine Bluff, a warden from 1941 to 1949, said prisoners were well fed and clothed. He said persons who served the food were ordered to serve more food than the inmates could possibly eat.

Milner also said in an interview with Pine Bluff radio station KCLA that stories of trusty torturing, killing and exhorting inmates were untrue. He said the prison had an elaborate "snitch" system and any trusty who got out of line would be promptly discovered and punished by a warden.

Milner, who testified recently before the Lincoln County Grand Jury investigating the unearthing of three human skeletons at Cummins, said he believed the bones came from a pauper's graveyard.

He said he knew of the existence of two graveyards at the prison—one an old plantation cemetery that contained the bodies of no more than five persons and the other a graveyard where the bodies of unclaimed prisoners were buried.

Milner said that one time during his tenure at Cummins a prisoner who had been killed by another convict during an argument was buried in a pauper's grave.

Favoritism Charged in Nursing Home

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Welfare Commissioner Len Blaylock says he will probably announce Monday whether he will retain William Floyd Cox as director of the Welfare Department's Nursing Home Division.

Federal officials have informed Blaylock that he must dismiss or retain Cox. Blaylock placed Cox on administrative leave two weeks ago.

Blaylock said Friday he had reason to believe many persons were "overclassified" with Cox's knowledge. Blaylock said the overclassification had cost the state more than $100,000 a year. He also charged that Cox had shown "favoritism in the assignment of patients to certain nursing homes."

Cox denied the charges and said he felt they were politically motivated. Cox also denied that his brother-in-law had operated the Kilgore Nursing Home of Osceola as Blaylock charged.

Blaylock said a survey showed 25 patients were overclassified at Kilgore and that the overclassifications resulted in an overpayment of $780 a month for the nursing home.

Blaylock also said the survey had turned up similar incidences of overclassification at other nursing homes.

Cox also said he had nothing to do with the classification of welfare patients in nursing homes. He said the classifications were determined from reports by the Welfare Department social workers and the nursing home physicians which were filed with the department's reviewing physician.

The state Welfare Board recommended that Blaylock and Cox meet in an effort to resolve their differences.

Navy Dreaming Up Floating Missile

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy engineers are studying a possible new generation of long-range missiles that would be fired while floating upright on the ocean's surface like partially submerged bowling pins.

Pentagon sources said such a missile would be released from a submarine and then fired by remote control as it bobbed on the surface. A weighted bottom would keep the missile from tipping over.

Target information would be fed into the missile's guidance system before it was released from its submarine, sources said.

The proposed new system would be cheaper and simpler than the Polaris submarine with its complicated mechanisms for launching and firing missiles.

The new weapons would have a range of about 6,000 miles—roughly twice that of the most advanced current submarine-fired missile, the Poseidon.

This new approach is one of four being kept on the back burner for possible development in the event the Soviet Union achieves significantly greater accuracy with its intercontinental missiles and thus threatens the survivability of land-based American missiles.

The other approaches involve: —Placing Poseidon missiles on surface ships.

—Mounting land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles on trucks so they might be moved about to foil a knockout blow.

—Creation of an entirely new long-range, land-based missile fired from a revolutionary type of silo which would be specially concealed and protected.

These concepts emerged from a study project ordered by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in late 1966.

Called Strat-X, the study's objective was to examine "future ballistic missile basing concepts and missile performance characteristics required to counter potential Soviet strategic offensive forces" and proliferation of antimissile systems.

Secretary of the Navy Paul R. Ignatius spoke recently in general terms of the proposed submarine-launched system.

Perhaps the One Thing Allied Forces That Everyone Wants Recapture Hue Palace

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Star Feature Writer

What is the one thing that everyone wants out of life? Happiness. The answer is the same for everyone. The difference lies in the methods used, for what is food for one person's soul gives another "indigestion," and, therefore, the methods vary as greatly as the persons using them.

It was the opinion of George B. Duncan (any further identity is not known) that the parable of the prodigal son is a most accurate picture of the experience that many men and women have gone through in their search for happiness. And, though written many years ago, the parable is very up-to-date, Mr. Duncan says.

The Prodigal's attitude was characterized by selfishness most accurately summed up by the words, "give me." Sound familiar? Aren't we often inclined to feel that if only we can get something, then happiness will be ours? So did this young man, who asked his father for his inheritance and then left home with it.

But if the Prodigal was selfish, it must also be noted that he was sincere. He sincerely thought that turning his back on his father (which carries a double-meaning of his earthly parent and his Heavenly Creator) was the answer. This only proves that we can be sincere and sincerely wrong at the same time.

Third, he was stubborn. And because of that he "had to learn the hard way." His father didn't let him go easily; he pleaded and begged, but to no avail. For the young man had one desire—to "get." That's when he began to "lose"—first, his wealth; then, his freedom; and finally, his self-respect.

We've thought of the desires that mastered him.

We've thought of the disasters that met him.

Now, let's look at the discoveries that made him.

The first discovery he made

Young Palsy Victim Has a New Fort

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Billy George, a 10-year-old boy with cerebral palsy, has a new "fort"—a small structure built by Mayor Charles Wright, Park Commissioner Lauren Nash and five firemen.

The clubhouse, or fort as Billy calls it, replaces one the city had torn down because it was built on a city easement. Property kept open by the city for its uses such as utility maintenance.

When the mayor heard about it, he vowed Billy would have a new fort.

Nash and the five firemen volunteered to help. They finished the job Thursday.

The mayor said the whole affair wasn't handled right in the first place.

"I would rather have them building a temporary structure on an easement than playing in the streets," he said.

Billy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William George, had received a city notice that the old fort would have to be taken down. Mrs. George wrote a letter to the city commissioners about it. Before it got to the mayor's attention, city workmen had removed the fort Billy and his friends had so painstakingly put together.

Here in part is the letter that moved the mayor:

"Mr. George and I have a son with cerebral palsy, a mild case, and of course boys being active creatures and alive as they are, are hesitant at playing with Billy."

"One day last summer they thought it would be fun to build a clubhouse—a fort as far as Billy is concerned."

"I was thrilled with the idea and said they could build it on our back easement, thinking that this would give our son a chance to play and be constructive."

"Billy enjoyed the company and skillful hands of older boys. He stayed in it most of his awake hours. But now . . ."

was that of his own folly. And possibly this is one of the biggest discoveries that we can ever make, just to discover who and what we really are. Secondly, he discovered his father. He was not a wrath-filled, revengeful person as the son vaguely imagined, but a loving, forgiving Father. With his father's kiss of forgiveness, the son knew he was received and welcomed.

So he discovered not only his folly and his father, but one more thing. He discovered his future. He was no more a slave but a son and gloriously free.

An old Scottish minister concluded a sermon on the Prodigal Son, using the softer word "home" for home, in this way: "There are three things that we can say about this younger son. The first is that he was sick o' home. Second, he was lame. And third, he was lame."

Have we come back to God the Father? If not, isn't it about time we did?

Finds Police Cars Can Really Move

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — After being arrested in a stolen police car overtaken by the highway patrol and police in a 40-mile chase, Margaret Ann Coclo commented:

"Boy, that was a ball. Those police cars can really move."

The unemployed go-go dancer had been stopped in her own car for driving erratically. Police said she stepped into the officer's patrol car and sped off when he left it to check her license plate.

During the chase in which she was clocked at up to 120 miles an hour Miss Coclo used the siren and red light and authorities said she forced several cars and trucks off the road.

Miss Coclo, 22, was finally forced off the road. She was charged with auto theft, hit-run driving and resisting arrest.

People Loving Gorilla Dead

SEATTLE (AP) — Bobo, the 16-year-old Woodland Park Zoo gorilla who loved people but spurned his mate, is dead.

An autopsy Thursday showed Bobo, who died in his sleep Wednesday night, was killed by blood clots that traveled through the bloodstream from his left leg and lodged in his lungs.

For 13 years scientists had tried to interest Bobo in his mate, Fifi. They even rigged up a television set so he would watch romantic scenes from old movies. Once a pair of baby apes was placed outside his cage.

But Bobo thought people were more fun than apes and spent his time thumping his chest in true gorilla fashion or weighing himself on special scales in his glass cage. He weighed 520 pounds.

Unwanted Harvest Exploded

LOUTH, England (AP) — The British army is exploding farmer William Hardy's unwanted harvest.

Sappers with mine detectors have unearthed 250 mortar and smoke bombs in two days on the 80-acre tract in Lincolnshire. They believe they'll find hundreds more.

The farm was a mortar range during World War II and later was declared free of danger.

"It's been like farming a minefield," said Hardy, 33. "We can plow a field and pick up 50 of these things as easily as anything. I never bothered unduly until one bomb blew a hole in a farm machine. I'd had enough so I called in the army."

"The ground is saturated with two- and three-inch mortar bombs as well as smoke bombs," said Sgt. Malcolm Banks of the Royal Engineers. "The official who cleared the fields for farming obviously made a big mistake."

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces recaptured the palace grounds of Hue's Citadel today from Communist troops which seized them 25 days ago, but heavy fighting continued in other parts of the Citadel.

A small force of government troops penetrated the fortified palace area early today, ripped down the Communist flag that had flown there since Jan. 31, and raised the government's colors on the 200-foot radio tower flagpole.

In early afternoon, a battalion of South Vietnamese soldiers and a company of rangers blasted through the palace area wall with mortars and cleared the palace within two hours against little opposition. The government troops reported two wounded.

The enemy troops apparently slipped out of the palace grounds into positions along the western half of the south wall of the 1 1/2-mile square Citadel, where heavy fighting was reported still in progress.

Associated Press correspondent George McArthur reported from Hue that there also were pockets of Communist resistance in a small area in the northwest corner and in a one-mile square area of stucco, thatched and tile houses just outside the east wall.

In Saigon, South Vietnamese military headquarters reported that government forces had killed a total of 250 Communist troops in scattered fighting today throughout the Citadel. Government losses were put at five dead and 22 wounded.

Meanwhile, North Vietnam's defense minister, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, was quoted as saying the "war is entering 'a fierce phase' in which there will be continual Communist attacks."

The latest enemy attacks included a 1,307-round shelling of the Khe Sanh U.S. Marine base—the second heaviest shelling of the war against that northwest frontier outpost—and another rocket assault on Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport.

Ten Marines were killed at Khe Sanh and 51 wounded, 30 of whom were treated and returned to duty. The shelling Friday was the heaviest since the Communists fired in 1,500 rounds of artillery, rockets and mortars Feb. 7.

An estimated 40,000 Communist troops are in and around the demilitarized zone and a major assault is expected, U.S. Commanders have said the most likely target is the Khe Sanh base, guarded by 5,000 U.S. Marines and 500 Vietnamese rangers.

The shelling of Tan Son Nhut airport was the second concentrated barrage there in less than a week. One of the 18 Russian-designed 122mm rockets that hit the base tore through a wooden barracks, killing four U.S. Air Force sergeants who had taken cover under their beds. Two other men in the barracks and 29 men elsewhere on the base, including a civilian, were wounded.

Six rockets landed in a crowded section of Vietnamese homes and shops just outside the base's main area. A government spokesman said 11 civilians were killed and five or six wounded.

The base commander said slight damage to one of the airport's two runways was repaired and both runways remained operational.

British Curbing Colored Immigrants

LONDON (AP) — As many as 2,000 Indians and Pakistanis with British passports are expected to fly to Britain from Kenya in the week remaining before Parliament sharply curtails colored immigration in an attempt to head off racial violence.

Home Secretary James Callaghan plans to rush through a bill restricting the admission of persons with British citizenship who are not native-born Britons or the children of natives. Such immigrants will be limited to 1,500 a year with special work permits.

Even Ugly Truth Needs Telling

U.S. Rep. Albert Watson issued a blistering attack on the American press for what he considers distorted coverage of the Vietnam war.

His outburst was precipitated by the picture of the execution of a captured Viet Cong officer in Saigon. The chief of the South Vietnamese police simply took a pistol and shot the man dead, Rep. Watson declared that "this type of picture will obviously inflame the antiwar demonstrators and is characteristic of the distorted view that the American public receives of the war."

Distorted? One wonders what kind of news reporting the public would get if Mr. Watson were doing the editing. He obviously thinks the picture should not be used because it does not conform to what he wants the people to read and see about that war.

The fact is that the police chief did summarily execute the prisoner. That's all that was presented to the American public in the news coverage. Readers and viewers were left to make their own judgments, based on what did happen and not on what some one thinks they should be told happened.

If the press is to perform its function of informing the public, even the ugly truth must be told. —Spartanburg (S.C.) Herald

Power Cut at Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The lights went out Thursday in the 14-story Alabama Power Co. office building. The electric company building was without electricity for 40 minutes after an underground cable serving the building was cut by men working on the water system in the area.

Caribbean Leaders Will Organize

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Caribbean leaders after a marathon session agreed early today to launch a Caribbean Free Trade Area—CARIFTA—embracing 10 English-speaking territories of the West Indies.

A spokesman said the door was left open for Jamaica which has not decided whether to join the pact.

Italians Remember Disastrous Flood

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Italian authorities, recalling the disastrous floods of November 1966, kept firemen and local military detachments in readiness today as the waters of the Arno and other central Italian rivers rose past their danger marks.

The Florence area was pelted with 1.6 inches of rain Thursday, but in 1966 the deluge was 7.1 inches in two days.
